

April 2020

To Whom It May Concern;

This letter serves as a strong reference for Logan Addison, who will graduate in May 2020 from Thiel College in Greenville, PA., with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Early Childhood Education and Special Education. Logan is a strong student, academically prepared to handle many challenges, both in and out of the classroom. She proved herself many times in the class discussions, presentations, tests, and papers, to be a young woman who is confident and competent in many areas. As her professor in both early childhood and special education courses; I can attest to her maturity, serious-mindedness, integrity, conscientiousness, professional work ethic, motivation, and preparedness.

I found Logan to be extremely prepared and punctual for each class meeting. When required to lead a class discussion or present a textual selection to the class, she engaged in extensive research, reflection and collaboration and presented a lesson that was thought-provoking, insightful, and scholarly. She drew the students into the discussion and solicited ideas from them that contributed significantly to the discussion. There are so many personal and academic traits to admire in Logan. She absolutely thrives on an academic challenge and works very diligently at each task she undertakes. She is an excellent leader with strong skills in both oral and written expression, an inquisitive spirit, a strong ethical component to her personality that is well-rounded and grounded in a life of service, and an openness to seeking and working with constructive criticism.

I am most honored and proud to serve as a strong reference for Logan Addison. It is with utmost confidence in her ability to attain a teaching position in an educational setting that I recommend Logan with the promise that both you and she will profit by her presence, participation, academic potential, and her natural ability to work with colleagues.

Sincerely,

Nancy Castor
Director of Teacher Education
Professor
Thiel College